

establish certain standards of “presumptive compliance” and allow an opportunity for institutions that do not meet those standards to rebut the presumption of noncompliance, or should FHFA devise an alternative structure, such as one that incorporates “bright line” tests for each of the various eligibility requirements and does not create presumptions that an institution would be permitted to rebut?<sup>27</sup>

Question Sixteen: Should FHFA play a role in resolving close membership issues, or leave them to the discretion of the Banks?

Export Control Modernization: Strategic Trade Authorization License Exception

AGENCY: Bureau of Industry and Security, Commerce.

ACTION: Proposed rule; correction.

SUMMARY: This document corrects a typographical error in the address for submitting e-mail comments that appeared in a proposed rule, “Export Control Modernization: Strategic Trade Authorization License Exception,” published on December 9, 2010.

<sup>27</sup> In January 2010, FHFA revised its membership regulations to implement statutory amendments authorizing CDFIs to become Bank members. As part of those revisions, FHFA allowed CDFI applicants that could not demonstrate compliance with certain of the specific standards relating to financial condition to provide alternative information demonstrating that they are in sound financial condition. By raising the larger issue of the appropriate regulatory structure for the membership regulations FHFA does not intend to change its policy, as evidenced by the recent revisions, that CDFI applicants are to be given latitude in demonstrating the soundness of their financial condition.
